

Necessity is the Mother of Invention

Even the copper weights on German clocks have been fired at the Allied troops! Stones have been substituted for the old copper weights

Another example of Germany's inventive genius turned to warlike purposes. The photograph shows the portable searchlight. This projector, small as it is, is remarkably powerful, and may be assembled for action in an exceedingly small space of time