

British Balloon for Reconnoitering in Greece

A British kite-balloon on the balloon deck of a war transport. On the right is a wind screen and in front is a special sliding platform to facilitate the movement of the bag. The balloon is carried in the hold of the ship and is released when conditions are favorable for reconnoitering

The illustration below shows a kite balloon rising from the deck of its transport to make a reconnaissance tour of the country surrounding Salonika. The balloon is invisible to enemy airmen when it is being transported from place to place in the vitals of the big war transport
