

There is a Question About the Gun—Not About the Ovens

© International Film Service

Does this gun, mounted on the Italian liner "Verona," as a protection against submarines, transform the peaceful passenger ship into an auxiliary cruiser? This is the new question in international law which it has raised

Austrian ovens behind the lines in the Serbian war zone. These crude ovens are made of clay, and despite their strange appearance, they are said to suit their purpose admirably