

From the World's Greatest Battle-Ground

At the scene of the world's greatest battle. Dummy-trench mortars behind the French lines at Verdun

A queer result of a high-explosive shell is shown to the right. In a French church a statue was struck by a shell. The statue was broken into fragments, but the head was hurled against the wall with such force that it was embedded in the masonry

In the great battle of Verdun, ammunition was fired in almost inconceivable quantities. Hundreds of motor-trucks, similar to those shown above dashed continually between the lines and the base of supplies, constantly replenishing ammunition and victuals
