

Austria's Natural Citadels

Austrian outposts watching the movements of Italian troops. Imagine the difficulty of storming this spot! Yet the Italians are every day attacking a seemingly impregnable mountain top. The suffering on both sides in the Alpine campaign is terrible, for the cold in the high altitudes is most penetrating, and snow-storms sweeping through the mountains cause the loss of many lives in both the contending armies